No Vacation for Volunteers, Continue Work for Children

By VONDA CARLTON

Work is now under way to enclose the porch at the end of the occupational therapy ward at Harbor General Hospital—thanks to the Volunteers for Children, Inc.

The group recently voted to appropriate $500 for the project. A fiber glass roof will be installed and the sides will be screened in with canvas coverings for the winter months.

A mat will cover the floor, enabling children to use the area to learn to walk. Formerly, they had to use the hallways to practice walking. The project is expected to be completed by the end of next month, according to Mrs. John Stoddard, president of the Volunteers.

The group has received the commendation of A. L. Thomas, hospital administrator, and Mrs. Carolyn Brinn, head of the occupational therapy department, for donating the funds for the porch.

Mrs. Stoddard also announced movies are being shown every Saturday night with the new movie projector. Half of the cost of the film is paid by Walt Disney with the Gardena Kiwanis Club underwriting the other half. A Torrance Kiwanian shows the film each week.

Members of the organization recently made and donated 12 robes for the children confined to the hospital. An appeal for additional volunteers, especially to assist

L.A. Art Show To Have Many New Features

New exhibition facilities, including the fanciful idea of using coil bedsprings to display paintings, are being prepared for the All-City Outdoor Art Festival scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 23, 24 and 25, at Barnsdall Park, Los Angeles.

Architect William Sutherland Beckett, former member of the Municipal Art Commission, is designing the installation for the vast display, which will again feature over 1000 paintings by as many individuals in a "mile of art."

Beckett's plans are designed with the idea of providing year-after-year usage for the mammoth festival. In addition to the vertically-standing bedsprings on which paintings will be hung, he expects to use undulating "walls" of heavy steel mesh, topped by aluminum sun-shields overhead; wooden panels of heavy plywood; concrete-block supports and walls, and many individualized display arrangements for sculpture.

According to Beckett, and John Bauer, festival chairman, attention will be given to traffic-flow patterns to minimize congestion at the three-day event. As it is, the festival display will spread out from the Municipal Art Gallery and its courtyard into the gardens and patios of Frank Lloyd Wright's famed "Hollyhock House" and into the adjoining Barnsdall Park playground.

Entries sought for this fifth annual non-jury art show, to be known as "Creative Los Angeles, 1957," must be made on or before Aug. 15, Bauer stressed.
